

Siemens Healthineers Training Center

Oxford, United Kingdom

Training Location

Siemens Healthineers Magnet Technology
Wharf Rd, Eynsham, Witney
Oxford OX29 4BP
United Kingdom

E-Mail: Geoff.keed@siemens-healthineers.com
Telephone: (44) 1865 880880

Accommodations in Oxford

There are lots of Hotels and B&B's in and around Oxford.

Please note: During rush hour the volume of traffic on the roads can seriously extend travel times, even for public transport. Please account for this when planning travel times to SMT, Eynsham.

Arrival by Airplane

Heathrow Airport (LHR), Gatwick Airport (LGW) and Stansted (STN).

Transport from the Airports to Oxford

Depending on which Airport you will be arriving at, there are bus services which will bring you to the centre of Oxford (Gloucester Green Bus Station, Oxford Centre).

The services run from London Gatwick and London Heathrow.

- London Heathrow timetable
- London Gatwick timetable
- <http://www.stanstedairport.com/>

Bus Service around Oxford

There is a frequent bus service that runs approximately every 15 minutes between Oxford City Centre and Eynsham. There is a bus stop right outside the factory, next to the Talbot Inn. This service is called S1 & S2; you can catch the bus from just outside SMT on the main road.

The same bus route, S1 and S2 also run to and from Witney to Eynsham at the same stop outside SMT.

If you are staying for a few days we recommend asking the bus driver about a zone ticket which will give you unlimited use of buses within certain zones in and around Oxford. Note: some routes are in separate zones and or operated by different companies.

Information about the Region

Oxford, The City of Dreaming Spires, is famous the world over for its University and place in history. For over 800 years, it has been a home to royalty and scholars, and since the 9th century an established town, known also for its stunning architecture and riverside setting, these are just some of the aspects of Oxford's unique appeal.

Nowadays, the city is a bustling cosmopolitan town, with a diverse mix of ancient and modern, there is plenty for tourist to do, whether it's visiting one of the many historic buildings, colleges or museums, going out for a drink or a meal, sightseeing or taking in a show.

Sightseers to the city come to see the buildings and quadrangles of the 39 colleges that comprise Oxford University. Perhaps the most popular of these are Christchurch (1524), Magdalen (1458) and Trinity College (1555). Visitors in spring can enjoy college boat races, or from April onwards there is cruising on the Thames and punting on the Cherwell.

Oxford is also a wonderful destination for the shopper with its compact city centre offering an excellent combination of well-known and independent retailers, a historic Covered Market and some of the best bookshops in the world.

Despite its academic aura, the city enjoys a youthful and cosmopolitan feel with a wide variety of modern and historic restaurants, pubs, entertainment and shopping. Combine this with an amazing array of world-famous Museums and libraries and 2 thriving theatres and you will understand why there is always plenty to do in Oxford whatever the season.

Any trip to Oxford should ideally begin with a guided walking tour or bus tour of the city. A wide variety of tours cater for all tastes - one can enjoy the Oxford University and City Tour, or Inspector Morse Tour or the more daring might take the evening Ghost Tour of the city.

Whether you're visiting for business or pleasure you will find a wide range of hotels, guesthouses, apartments and self-catering accommodation.

But, if you find you do want more, then Oxford is a just a short hop away from many other attractions and the capital city itself, London.